The harmonious passage of this funding bill is undoubtedly a gratifying event at the conclusion of a most unhappy session of the Legislature of Virginia-a session remarkably passionate, and productive of public dissatisfaction and apprehension. The agreement of the great body of the Legislature in the passage of the bill refinites the controlling party in Virginia politics and reestablishes political peace-certainly for a time—to the advantage of State and peoplc. This great blessing is secured. We have no apprehension that gentlemen are inclined to renew the wrangling of the last twelve months. It is not the nature of an enlightened people to be fond of passionate disputation and party conflict. A short season of such disturbance is quite sufficient for any community that has anything to do, and which depends upon its industries for support and prosperity. We know all have had a sufficiency of this; we say all, and we add save the soreheads and mad partisans who think more of their personal party schemes than they do of the welfare of the

This great blessing we bave secured by the agreement upon the funding bill. That there is great doubt that the public creditor will consider the measure as acceptable is undoubtedly true. It was this doubt that caused some gentlemen to vote against the bill. But certainly we can say that this much is accomplished : the State has made an offer. It is for the public creditor to accept it or decline it; for its acceptance is entirely optional with him.

If the public creditor declines it, we have still the grand advantage of the relinion of the great Conservative party, and the allaying of the bitter agitation which has not only disturbed the public peace, but has seriously impaired the public credit.

This is indeed happy, and we may felicitate the Commonwealth that so much has been done.

And now, as to the bondholder, we have time enough to consider the question and he time to settle his own opinions as to what is best for him. We are not decided in our own mind upon the subject. The reasons why he should settle the question at once by accepting the new bond and avoiding the terrible effects of agitation upon his property and upon the revenues of Virginia are many. There are other considerations which may invite him to decide against that course. He must be the judge. Again we congratulate the people of Virginia upon the passage of this funding bill. It gives us peace now, and illumines that prospect which a week ago seemed hopelessly beclouded.

Better Times.

The Vine-Growers' Association of Washington, according to the statement of our Washington correspondent, has sent a committee of three to Virginia and the Carolinas to make observation and gather facts with regard to the adaptability of the land and climate in those States to the culture of the grape. In this State there has been a steady expansion of the cultivation of the vine. We have a society, whose headquarters are in Richmond, that has gone to work in a practical manner by establishing a wine manufactory for receiving grapes and the juice of the grape, and for making the wine by proper processes and storage. This society is headed by men of experience, and they are proceeding in the way which their knowledge points out as the sure way to make wine. They are satisfied that there are good wine-grapes in Virginia and fine localities for the cultivation of the grape. They will put the products of Virginia in the grape line to a fair test, and we are sanguine of obtaining good results. -It is a fact which should be gratifying to our country friends that there is a great deal more inquiry the present season than during some years past for good farms. There are many northern citizens who are seeking a more gentle climate than that mittee add: "The clerk, to whose courtesy Virginia and desire to make it their adopted the discharge of our duty, is, in our opinthey have in the North, and who admire State. We noticed a day or two since a remarkable team from Pennsylvania that ap- to his ability and fidelity in the discharge peared in our city. It belonged to a Pennsylvanian who was in the act of taking up his residence in the upper James-River valley. We could not resist the temptation to draw a picture contrasting this demonstration of the high appreciation of the land and clime of Virginia in the presence of a legislative assembly which has been doing much in the way of impairing the credit, and peace, and prosperity of the State. The picture was, alas, too true, and, we fear, tended to disturb the quiet and hope of our adopted citizens. But, while the picture was true, there is the best reason to assure our friends and fellow-citizens of Virginia, and also these welcome adopted citizens from the North, that the "crashing" readjusters, whose views and measures were steadily tending to the ruin of the State, are frustrated and the harm they concocted for the general welfare is avoided. There is now the silver-lining to the dark cloud that lowered over Virginia. Time is afforded for rest and recuperation. The whole country is recovering. Confidence and trust are gaining strength, the Commonwealth will be able to resume the business of meeting her public obligations, and soon we shall have thrift and contentment instead of confusion and uneasiness.

We invite the immigrant with means and energies, and do not believe that he will regret that he came to Virginia, with her gentle climate, generous lands, and genial society. We really believe that we say with agitation will not yex the country nor se-

A Liverpool Concess It is something, indeed, to get a concesion to "silver lunacy" that "grad-grind" of a city, Liverpool. The following is an extract from the colton chrediar of Messrs. SMITH, EDWARDS & Co., of Liverpool:

The chief monetary event of the month is he passing of the silver bill through the American Congress-a measure of great importance in its ultimate bearings on the trade and floances of the world. According to it, silver is declared to be unlimited legal tender at the rate of 16 to 1 of gold—a valua-tion equivalent to 59d, per ounce. The prac-tical effect of the bill, however, is rendered in a measure nugatory by the restriction of coinage to four million dollars per month, and this is so inconsistent with its principle that it seems highly probable the party which carried it will soon repeal the restrictive clauses, and then we will experience a demand for silver from America which will probably counterbalance the efflux from sermany. We would not be surprised if the ultimate effect be to reestablish the equilibrium between gold and silver which was first disturbed by the demonstration of Germany, and to restore silver to nearly its old value. Should that be the case, the benefit to the silver-using countries, and indeed to the world at large, would be immense, and the wrong done to the American bondbolders would be practically neutralized.

A LONG-LIVED LITERARY FORGERY .- Th reproduction in a daily journal of the pretended letter of Lentulus to the Roman Senate, in which the person of Jesus is described and his miracles narrated, shows how faith in a forged document may be kept alive, after it has been exposed in its true character a hundred times, and although its spuriousness is transparent to all well-educated persons .- New York Times.

Mr. Walston said: I voted against the preamble of this bill on yesterday and against the bill after the refusal of the Senate to strike out the preamble. This was Mr. BROOKE's contribution, but not in the shape of a resolution :

It has been said by many that this Legis-

I deny the proposition I refer with confidence to the record to show that it has passed more relief bills than any that ever sat before in these halls. In this respect it has been an eminent success. But apart from this feature there are many pleasant memories that I shall carry with me Senator from Middlesex. > HOUSE OF DELEGATES. Speaker ALLEN in the chair. The bill amending the general tax law was passed. It makes no very important changes. A number of local and private bills were APPROPRIATION BILL.

The chair was vacated at 124 until 1 o'clock to await the conference of the conference committee on the disagreeing votes of the two houses in relation to the appropriation bill. The House wanted to put in $1,000 as pay of W. N. Newman, temporary clerk in the Treasurer's office. The Senate didn't. The Senate wished to add an item to make the salary of their own clerk $1,600 per annum. The House insisted that $1,000 Senator Elliott in the chair. was enough. The House members yielded their objections to the salary of Mr. Davis. and the Senate members yielded their objection to Mr. Newman being provided for in the appropriation bill. The members of the conference construed the $15,000 school appropriation to mean that, in accordance with the act recently passed, the money should be paid to the school fund quarterly > when practicable. The members of the conference were Senators Massey, Gayle, and B. T. Johnson, and Delegates BARBOUR, MOFFETT, GRAVES, man. He stated that he should oppose that. In other respects the report was unanimous. The House agreed to the report, and it vas communicated to the Senate.

NEW FUNDING BILL.

Mr. QUESENBERRY communicated to the House the fact that the Senate had passed the new funding bill-the FOWLER-BOCOCK bill, as it is sometimes called from the fact that the preamble was the work of Mr. FOWLER, and the interest-provision compromise was offered by Mr. Bocock. Mr. QUESENBERRY'S announcement was greeted with applause. APPROPRIATION BILL, AGAIN.

Mr. BARBOUR submitted to the House the report of the conference. The question being upon agreeing to the report, Mr. HANGER called the pending question. Ordered. The report was agreed to-ayes, 64;

Mr. STEVENS made the point, in effect, that the pay of Mr. Davis had been raised by the report of the conference committee above the point first agreed upon by the House; which increase had never been passed upon by sixty-seven aftirmative votes, as were required. The SPEAKER said the point was well taken. The agreement of the House having been communicated to the Senate, Mr. HANGER suggested that the matter had passed out of the control of the House. Much discussion followed.

Mr. STEVENS moved that the bill be recalled. Not agreed to. He asked for the aves and noes; but the call was not sustained. Subsequently the House was informed that the Senate had agreed to the report.

Recess until 8 P. M. Night Session. Speaker ALLEN in the chair. Two or three Senate bills of a private or ocal character were passed.

The usual order for the appointment of a committee on the part of the House to act was adopted. The SPEAKER appointed Mr. Brooke presented a resolution of Messrs. HANGER, BARBOUR, and McMullan. The usual resolutions of thanks to the SPEAKER, to the clerk and his assistants, to the sergeant-at-arms, doorkeepers, and pages, and to the Chairman of the Committee on Earotled Bills, were adopted.

A motion to adjourn sine die was made. The Speaker said: Permit me, gentlemen, to express to you my profound acknowledgement for the complimentary resolutions you have adopted. Let me hope that the legislation of the past few months may enure to the credit, prosperity, and glory of the Commonwealth. If it does, no man will more sincerely rejoice than I. I will new put the motion to adjourn.

The motion was carried. Adjourned.

A LAND BANK .- The plan of Mr. Fulkerson, as proposed in the State Senate a few days since to legalize a bank with a capital of $3,000,000, by the State, to be loaned to farmers, is as airy as any proposition ever yet originated by this Bombastes Furioso of the Southwest. The only bank that is to give relief to the farmer is the manure bank well distributed over his soil. The borrowing of money is to him a curse in many instances, and whenever the farmer has to mortgage his lands, if he wishes to save a remnant for his family, he had better sell it at once for what it will bring in the market. In six cases out of ten where land is mortgaged, it is sold by the trustee. The farmer can get no relief in borrowing, and can only save himself by intelligent labor and wise economy .- Norfolk Ledger.

DIED.

Died, at Hopedale, his residence, in the county of Hanover, on the 7th of March, after a brief illness, WILLIAM PARSLEY, in the sixty-ninth year of his age. Punctuality, integrity, and honor characterized every transaction of his life, and by his death the community loses a most worthy citizen, his numerous friends a valuable counsellor, and his family a guide and guardian whose place can never be filled. Died, March 13, 1878, JOHN WILLIAM, the only son of Patrick and Mary Burke; aged three years and one month.

In joy did he come to us With tiny golden hair; His bright eyes looked upon us And made all things look fair.

So often he amused us As in our arms he lay : For God to spare him to us So often did we gray. So many times he kissed us In his little, cunning way; It seems he meant to tell us With us he could not stay.

He stayed a short time with us. Our JOHNNIE, baby dear; And just began to call us When God called him away. Though sadly it did grieve us, Yet we had nought to say; 'Twas God that gave him to us.

'Twas God that took him away.
